

20. The definite article

The, the, the.

The, the, the.

The, the, the.

The, the, the.

The is the definite article.

You put it in front of a noun or an adjective.

It means you talk about a certain noun,
a noun you know. *

* In the sense that you refer to one thing in particular.

The tree, the table, the bed.

The mouth, the nose, the head.

Or the blue planet, the big-bang, the small particle.

That's why you call it the definite article.

The, the, the.

The, the, the.

The, the, the.

The, the, the.

Before a vowel sound like e,
the article changes into the.

The internet, the eye, the ear.

The ape, the hour, the air.

Or the empty space, the intelligent plan, the old principle.

But it is still the definite article.

The, the, the.

The, the, the.

The, the, the.

The, the, the.